

DIDSBURY SHOPPING WEEK

A Victim of Nazi Warfare

Reprinted from the Whitstable (England) Newspaper.

A story of devotion to duty and the magnificent spirit of the Canadians lies behind the tragedy which occurred at Canterbury on Friday last, when among the victims of what must have been a deliberate attempt by Nazi airmen to bomb the Cathedral, were two nurses attached to the Kent and Canterbury Hospital.

Miss Eva Amy (Pat) Fairfax-Brown, a niece of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Adams, "Kildare," Irish Village, Whitstable, had gone into the city with two other nurses, and while one went to another establishment, the other accompanied Miss Fairfax-Brown to a furrier's shop, where she proposed buying a pair of gloves as a Christmas present for her mother who lives in Canada. While there, a bomb fell direct on the premises, killing instantly the proprietor—who incidentally also lived at Whitstable—and several customers.

Miss Fairfax-Brown, who was within a month of her 22nd birthday was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Fairfax-Brown, of Springs Valley Farm, Didsbury, Alberta, Canada. She visited England in her childhood, and she again came to this country when her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Adams, returned from Canada in the autumn of 1936.

Two years ago, Miss Fairfax-Brown decided to train as a nurse and took an appointment at the Kent and Canterbury Hospital. She was particularly interested in her duties and made rapid progress. She took her preliminary examination on the Tuesday before she met with her tragic death, and it was her intention after completing her training in about 15 months' time, to go to Canada with her uncle and aunt.

When war broke out, Mr. and Mrs. Adams approached her on the subject of returning home, but all persuasion was unavailing. She felt the call of duty, as did her father and mother in the last war. Her father served in the Canadian Forces and her mother did war service as a nurse at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, Rochester.

Miss Fairfax-Brown believed it to be her duty to follow the example of her father and mother. She was the personification of the true Canadian spirit. She was thoroughly happy in her work and her patriotism and sense of national service were apparent to her many friends. She had a charming personality, she not only made friendships easily but she retained them. Her work brought her into contact with many people who admired her for her fine sterling qualities.

She was the first of a large family to have lost her life on "active service" in the cause of world freedom.

All who knew her will feel that her death is a personal loss, and the wide expanse of water will not lessen the sincerity of the expressions of sympathy for Mr. and Mrs. Fairfax-Brown.

Red Cross to Open Sewing Room

The local ladies committee of the Red Cross have ordered material for 75 outfits of clothing for children who have been driven from their homes by the bombing raids over Great Britain.

The need for such material is very urgent and it has been decided to open a sewing room for two or three nights each week. The work will be under the supervision of experienced seamstresses and it is thought that considerable work can be accomplished at these meetings.

On account of the urgent need, this work should be rushed, and it is hoped to get it completed in about two weeks.

All ladies who are willing to help in this work are asked to notify Mrs. H. J. Friesen at the Ladies Shoppe.

Materials for doing this work in the homes may also be obtained at the Red Cross Room.

Men Called to Serve for Second Period of Compulsory Training

With the second 30-day military training period scheduled to commence November 22, notices have been issued by the registrars of the thirteenth Divisional Boards of the National War Services Department to single men of 21 and 22 and a small number in the 23 year-old class to report for medical examination.

In making this announcement Major General L. R. LeFleche, Associate Deputy Minister, stated that all medical practitioners in good standing throughout Canada have been appointed examining physicians by Hon. James G. Gardiner, Minister of National War Services, and that all examination fees will be paid by the Department. At the same time, he stressed the fact that each man must sign the medical examination form on which appears the doctor's report on his physical condition.

Major General LeFleche pointed out that since the time of national registration — last August — many young men have enrolled in universities and colleges, or have joined the Navy, Army, Air Force or a Non-Permanent Active Militia unit.

If notices to report for medical examination should be received by any of these men, they must immediately inform the registrar whose name appears on the upper left hand corner of the notice, he stated. Their speedy cooperation in this connection will enable registrars to obtain other eligible young men to complete the required quota.

Any application for postponement of training must be made to the Divisional Registrar within eight clear days of the date appearing on the notice for medical examination.

Following the same procedure adopted in the case of the first group of young men called upon to undergo military training those in the second group who are found to be medically fit will be notified. Transport warrants covering transportation from the recorded place of residence to the indicated training centre, will be issued if necessary.

Ranton's Prize—Your choice of any Lady's Dress in the store or $5.00 worth of Merchandise.

Stores Closed Remembrance Day

Monday next being Remembrance Day, all stores and business houses will be closed and will be open all day Wednesday.

Wheat Quota Raised

The quota for the delivery of wheat to Didsbury elevators has been raised to 10 bushels per acre, which means that farmers in this district will now be allowed to deliver two bushels per acre on their permits.

In A Common Cause

With the gradual approach of the war towards the threshold of this Dominion, the importance of complete unity of the people of Canada and perfect accord and harmony between all governmental units, political parties and all classes and creeds, nationalities and groups is becoming daily more apparent.

This is very essential if this country is not to fall a victim to the first aim of aggression of the Nazi foe—propaganda designed to undermine morale and to create dissension, fear and a feeling of helplessness and hopelessness. This is the most dangerous of all the weapons employed by Hitler as the swift march of events in Europe has demonstrated only too well.

In every country which has been so far subjugated by the Hitler hordes, the arch-enemy of democracy has utilized propaganda for his first onslaught against his potential victims. In his book Mein Kampf he has plainly told the world that that was to be his strategy and that is one promise that he has carried out to the letter, with dire results to those who might have withstood his legions, had they but heeded this warning.

The Hitlerian program is to first weaken his intended victims from within, literally to encourage and assist them with poisoned propaganda to pave the way for an easy walk over with bombers, tanks and all the other weapons of the Nazi war machine. To date the British alone have taken the sting out of this insidious, lethal weapon and have called Herr Hitler's bluff. Canadians, too, are made of sterner stuff than others who have succumbed to the poisoned wells of German propaganda and can be relied upon to halt the foe on this slippery battlefield. If the people of this country unite to resist these first advances and rout the enemy on that ground there can be no doubt of the ultimate outcome of the more tangible phases of the conflict.

East-West Unity

There are those who, because of the complexity of the population of this country, feared that Hitler's agents might find Canada a fertile soil in which to sow the seeds of discord, fear and demoralization, but any such fear which might have been harbored by a few has been completely dispelled.

Perhaps never in the history of this country have the people of the Dominion been so united in a common cause as they are to-day—determined to root out all those who would espouse even a semblance of the horrible Nazi doctrines and to preserve intact for themselves and their posterity, the great heritage of freedom and liberty which many Canadians inherited as their birthright and which the great majority of the others came here to seek and to find.

In Western Canada, comprised as it is of many diverse nationals, of many creeds, many races and many tongues, we find nothing but complete unity of purpose, an intense desire to sink all petty differences, an intent earnestness to bend every energy to the winning of this war to the end that those things which we value so highly may be conserved to us, our children and our children's children.

We have strong evidence that the same unity of purpose binds the Anglo-Saxon and the French constituents in Eastern Canada in a strong, well knit common bond of sympathy and understanding. Here is the testimony of Le Jour, powerful French language newspaper published in Montreal, the citadel of French-Canadian Quebec.

"About the war and the need to win it, French-language Canadians think just like all the rest of the country. About 85 per cent. are pro-British in the present crisis and about 95 per cent. are passionately anti-Nazi. Just give me a chance to poll public opinion," says the editor, "and I am sure that I could prove that these figures are not exaggerated."

In this comforting editorial, the editor of Le Jour cites "four striking assertions which show the attitude of mind of French-language Canadians: 1. The complete failure of the theatrical Houdini thrust; 2. Duplessis' defeat; 3. The complete victory of the men responsible for our participation in the war; 4. The perfect order which marked the three days of national registration."

"Isn't this enough proof for you?" continues Le Jour. "If not, go amongst the people and ask them reasonable questions, chat with our people, and you will see how the great agony of our era is shared by nearly three million French-language Canadians, who, since the downfall of France, more than ever feel the need to forget their childish bickerings of the past, so as to unite themselves with all the other defenders of our country that is now in danger, with that nationality which has nevertheless, respected our language and our traditions for the past 180 years and along with whom we hope to develop a free, prosperous and happy life."

Strong evidence, surely, that all Canadians are prepared to sink narrow differences and partisan strife. Let this spirit prevail from the Atlantic to the Pacific and Canada will give a good account of herself in this great fight, whether the struggle is brought to these shores or whether it is confined to the other side of the ocean.

More Band Music Suggested

Nothing Like It To Rouse Spirits Of The People

The Amherstburg Echo thinks what Canada needs is more band music. More stirring, patriotic band music on radios, in theatres and at community events. There is nothing like a band to rouse the spirits of the citizenry and as a wartime effort the people should be given the opportunity to hear marches and songs whenever possible. There are few people who do not get that piggy-wiggly feeling up and down their spine when a band passes on parade. Canadians will receive greater inspiration to patriotic endeavors when they hear a band, and so we would suggest more bands more often.

Guards Were Doubled

When The Queen Visited Hospital Where Wounded Germans Were

Two wounded German airmen, prisoners of war in a British military hospital, had the surprise and the disappointment of their lives recently. In the morning their guards were doubled, and they thought the invasion had begun, reports the London Daily Sketch. Instead, later, they found the Queen had been visiting the hospital. She had passed through the next room to them, but it was not until after she had left that she learned how near she had been to the prisoners.

MR. CAFFEINE-NERVES: School's out for me!—Postum and caffeine-nerves just don't get along!

Many people can safely drink tea and coffee. Many others—and all children—should never drink them. If you are one of these, try Postum's 30-day test. Suggestion That British Government Employ Jobless Musicians In Shelters

The Musicians' Union suggested that the government put hundreds of jobless musicians to work chasing the gloom out of air-raid shelters. The union said the music would also contribute to the support of public morale during the winter when the blackout will begin soon after 4 p.m. The government would pay a set wage to each musician, the union proposed, and performances would be restricted to certain hours.

Canada's Plane Production Has Been Accelerated Beyond Earlier Expectations

Canada's average rate of production of aircraft now is 12 times greater than before the war began, and within a year it will be tripled again, James S. Duncan, Deputy Minister for Air, said in an address at Toronto.

"With the outbreak of war, it became necessary to throw Canada's aircraft production into high gear," he said.

"Many millions of dollars have been spent on capital facilities including both plant and tooling. Orders totalling over $100,000,000 have been placed for aircraft, and many more are yet to come. Ten thousand men now find employment in our aircraft factories throughout this Dominion and within 12 months this number will be doubled.

"In the three months ending Sept. 30 our factories have turned out 'planes at an average monthly output largely in excess of the yearly production of pre-war days, and within a year this figure will be multiplied by three."

Duncan said Canada's war effort in the air is proceeding at a pace "well beyond our most optimistic expectations.

"At this moment," he said, "we have more men overseas, more men on home defence, more men in training, more schools in operation, more airframes constructed, more buildings ready for occupation than were contemplated in our original plans.

"In other words, we have been able in every way to increase our contribution to the common cause and we believe that we have built a foundation from which we will be able to move forward at an even greater pace."

The deputy air minister said Canada to-day is producing as many 'planes each month, per head of population, as the United States. He added:

"Our Department of Aircraft Production tell me their long-range program contemplates, with the possible exception of aero-engine manufacture, a completely integrated, self-contained industry, capable of producing anything from a primary trainer to the largest long-range heavy bomber."

Duncan described the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan as "Canada's greatest single enterprise" in the war effort. At the outset he said he thought the word "plan" should no longer be used. It suggested too much the blue-print stage, whereas the process of training pilots, air gunners and air observers for service overseas was already well advanced.

"We have some 6,000 of them in the various stages of training at this minute and we will take in at least 2,000 more before the end of the year.

"The process of acceleration of training can be and is being pressed. By the end of the year, we shall have trained twice as many pilots as the plan originally contemplated. We will have 48 schools of various kinds in operation as against the 36 the plan called for, and during this same period twice as many men as were planned for will have been sent overseas.

"We have accomplished something and much more can still be accomplished. I believe there is room for confidence, there is none for complacency."

Duncan appealed to Canadians to "give of ourselves unstintingly," emulating the spirit of the young men in the Royal Canadian Air Force.

"Our country lacks no defiance nor valor in its young men," he said. "If we lack anything I think it is rather in an adult realization of the task confronting us.

"Let each one of us resolve that whatever the sacrifices may be, they will be cheerfully and eagerly borne, that whatever has to be given will be given with both hands as befits those participating in a crusade.

"For surely, gentlemen, this task is nothing less than that a crusade as holy as ever inspired knight to don his armor.

"Our youth will take it into the air, on to the seas and across foreign lands. Let us who stay at home see to it that we also play our part, that we also do our duty and carry our share of the load."

The Deputy Minister mentioned Canada's fighting airmen overseas "who with 175 victorious air battles to their credit, are re-enacting the glorious exploits of their older brothers in the last war."

But he said another big job was being done by the R.C.A.F. in co-operation with the Royal Canadian Navy—a job of which Canadians had heard all too little.

Since the war started, more than 3,000 ships, with a total tonnage of more than 17,000,000, had left Canada for Britain. They were the "very life-line of these beleaguered islands of Great Britain."

"I am proud to say that not one of these ships has been lost while under Canadian protection on this side of the Atlantic," Duncan said.

Then there was the work of building up and strengthening Canada's east and west coast defences, now being carried out with "feverish energy."

"I tell you of these patrols and defences," he said, "for behind these are our vital industries on which depends our capacity to make war."

Are Never Useless

Naval Vessels However Obsolete Can Do Their Bit In Wartime

The vanguard of the American destroyers turned over to Britain by the United States in exchange for naval and air base privileges in British territory have reached England. Their voyage, undertaken with customary naval secrecy and carried out with customary naval efficiency, justifies the faith of the British Admiralty that these ships could serve a more than useful purpose on war duty. They will release more modern ships for combat duty and themselves take up the less exacting but highly important convoy tasks. They demonstrated their fitness for duty on the 2,500-mile "shake down" cruise across the Atlantic under autumn storm conditions.

No naval vessel, even if it is considered obsolete, is ever useless, as witness the old tubs and battered craft that helped evacuate the British Army from Dunkerque. Montreal Star.

To Put In Time

Canadian Soldiers Have Developed "Snack" Habit To High Degree

Canada's fighting men of 1940 drink less than soldiers of 1914-18, but they eat more.

That's the opinion of Dr. J. P. S. Cathcart, chief neuropsychiatrist for the Department of Pensions and National Health.

He said that the "snack" habit is almost a disease among young Canadians. The amount of chocolate bars, peanuts, doughnuts and soft drink they "guzzled" was astounding. Often when a man was sick the doctor found out from a friend what he'd been eating in the canteen and "you'd think he was a small boy with a dollar, at the circus."

But it wasn't due to lack of quality or quantity in food served at the military camps, for Canada's soldiers were fed better than any others in the world.

"I think they simply eat for something to do," Dr. Cathcart said.

Something To Avoid

People Dare Not Let Sense Of Right Become Numb

The stern challenge issued by President Charles Seymour of Yale University in welcoming the members of the freshman class the other day is one which faces all Christian men and women to-day. It was a challenge to keep dominant in life a sensitive awareness of right and wrong. Pointing out the danger of indifference, Dr. Seymour stressed the absolute necessity of the "active practice of the right."

"There is no greater menace at the moment than the danger that sensitiveness to evil should become numb by reason of constant familiarity with evil," said the president.

"If we once permit anyone to declare that there are 'sound moral reasons' for acts which affront the conscience of civilized men, there will be nothing left for us to defend. We shall not save our way of life through denunciation of the wrong; salvation can only be achieved by active practice of the right."

Our forefathers, he told his young listeners, left to us a sense of right and wrong, the basis of our way of life, and "we dare not let it die."

Society does not subsist upon a formula; words expressing an ideal are not enough. Rather its strength is found in the quality of the men and women who strive to make the ideal a reality, by labor and sacrifice and courage.

In a world in which evil in most horrible forms and in subtle forms stalks through many lands, it is a time to exert an extra effort to keep standards high, to keep keenly alert the sense of right and wrong.

New Use For Siren

Nazis Clear Streets When Wounded Soldiers Go Through Towns

There is a report from Berlin that slightly wounded soldiers have been seen on the streets of the German capital for the first time within the past few days. It confirms other reports that have trickled through from time to time telling how German officials have been careful to keep from the people any indication of their heavy casualties in this war. All sorts of devices have been employed to keep the badly wounded away from the civilian population.

The German High Command is ashamed of its wounded heroes. Ashamed—or afraid—to let the people of Berlin and other German cities know that their men have been killed and wounded by the thousand. They set off air-raid alarms when convoys of wounded pass through a city or town on their way to a hidden hospital. A dictatorship cannot afford to let the people know the grim facts of war—its prestige rests on glittering uniforms and smart parades, not on the sight of blood-stained wounded men. It knows the people cannot stand such sights.

That's one reason why we think the R.A.F. should take more time off from bombing "military objectives" to giving civilians in German cities a taste of what Londoners have been enduring.—Ottawa Journal.

The Voice Of Freedom That Comes To Us From Britain In Challenging Tones

Every evening, for five or six hours, programs broadcast by the British Broadcasting Corporation may be heard, on the short wave band of the radio.

On those programs all sorts and conditions of Britons talk across the ether waves to the American continent. J. E. Priestley, noted novelist, has become, through these programs, perhaps the finest war commentator of all. Then there are Leslie Howard, Wickham Steed and various high officers of the air, army and navy services and members of Parliament. There are, too, the simple, average people of London and of England. A taxi driver, a gentle-voiced woman from a tiny village, a farmer and a Cockney air raid warden. Just casual people, brought in to describe for Canada and the United States their own experiences, their reactions and their life under bombardment.

There is something vastly reassuring about these broadcasts, to all Americans whose hearts sympathize with Britain and whose spirits strain to help in the great battle for human freedom.

Not that they do not tell the same facts we read in our own newspapers, or hear from the lips of our own radio commentators. Those Britishers are astonishingly frank. They tell of the fearful destruction in London. They describe the discomforts, the nerve strain and the agonies of life in a city-target for blitzkrieg.

But it is more than the words they speak that comes over the ether. It is, perhaps, in the tones of their voices, in the personality that, for good or for evil, must always be heard behind the spoken words of any speaker.

They tell, perhaps unconsciously, far more than words can say. For, in every breath, in every syllable, is the echo of a spirit, the spirit of Britain. And you know, as you catch that spirit through their words, that it is the spirit of an unconquered and unconquerable Britain.

Britain Speaks! We tune in our radios and listen. Sometimes there is distortion to the music of their songs or the tone of their words. But there is never distortion to the inner voice that speaks so clarionlike to the inner spirit of us all.

Distance may distort the song but we rejoice as we hear they still can sing. The words of the commentator may, at times, fade, but the courage and the morale that fills all British hearts does not fade, it grows steadily clearer and stronger until, trumpetlike, it calls in challenging tones to us of British blood on this side of the Atlantic.

Britain has spoken many times before to all the world. It has been her voice, through centuries of advancing civilization, that has so often led the way to man. It has been her voice that has called to the marching legions along the difficult road to universal brotherhood and freedom.

But never, in all man's history, has the voice of a nation spoken so compellingly, so gloriously, as now speaks the voice of Britain.

It is a still, small voice that uses no lips nor tongue. It is a voice that sounds clear to all the world. It is a voice that comes on the broadcast of a free spirit. It is the voice that all men worthy of manhood, all women worthy of womanhood, know. Sometimes it is called the voice of conscience. Sometimes it is the voice of idealism. Sometimes it is simply the voice of human courage, crying out in the darkness.

From Britain to-day it is the voice of all these, and more.

It is the voice of indomitable will. It is the voice of freedom. It is the voice of courage and it is the voice of sacrifice. It is, perhaps more than all these, the voice of challenge.

It is the call from the noble spirit of a free people to kindred souls the world over.

Britain Speaks! And he who cannot hear must possess the craven spirit of a slave, can know nothing of the eternal aspiration to freedom that has identified brave men, of all ages, everywhere.—Atlanta (Georgia) Constitution.

Valuable Pieces Of Art Taken Off Liner At Bermuda

Masterpieces of modern French art with a possible value of $500,000 were removed from the American Export liner Exahbur by British authorities at Bermuda recently, line officials said.

Officials said they had been told Britain regarded the pictures as "enemy exports" and a ruse by the Germans to secure dollar exchange in America.

A Toronto paper says that children have a keener sense of touch than adults. It reads like the opinion of an editor with a large family.

Why Empire Will Stand

Because Her People Have A Faith That Cannot Be Shaken

There will always be an England because English people cannot be frightened or terrorized out of their course. Because of the greatness of her soul, there will always be an England. Two thousand years of history proclaim her invincibility.

It is recorded that on Sunday afternoon, the fourth day of August, 1914, more than 150,000 people assembled in and around St. Paul's Cathedral and with confident faith sang:

"O God our help in ages past,
Our hope for years to come,
Our shelter in the stormy blast
And our eternal home."

At four o'clock in the afternoon of November 21, 1918, the day of the ignominious surrender of Germany's high seas fleet, from the Queen Elizabeth, Admiral Sir David Beatty's flagship, he sent out this message to a thousand ships that had participated in the downfall of German sea power: "At six o'clock this evening on the deck of the Queen Elizabeth will be held a service of thanksgiving to Almighty God for the victory over our enemies. I recommend that a similar service be held on other ships." Again, from 1,000 ships went up, in subdued, triumphant tones, the faith set forth in that same great hymn that had carried a great Empire through a world crisis.

"O God our help in ages past,
Our hope for years to come."

It is that faith which assures us that "There'll always be an England."—Montreal Star.

Do not be too impatient with the person who is too busy during working hours to do what you wish. Somebody must attend to business.

Water seems to be the problem of the Axis powers: too much of it between France and England, and too little of it in Egypt.

A pleasant evening was spent with sing songs and games. The young couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts.

Rosebud Flour Mill Asset to Community

The Rosebud Flour Mill is a decided asset to the community and not only a benefit to the local farmers in having their own wheat manufactured into flour, but Mr. Weber has developed a good trade for flour and other wheat products which are sold throughout Alberta and British Columbia.

Perhaps the best known of their products is the Rosebud Pancake Flour, which is not only used for pancakes but for all soft-dough foods eaten hot, and has acquired quite a reputation throughout the West. They also manufacture Wheatlets, a health bran special, and have recently developed a health drink "Rosebud Cheer," which is a coffee substitute.

Mr. Weber informs us that to keep up the quality of his products, he is milling only No. 2 wheat and better, and not only takes into consideration the grades of wheat, but uses the protein test to determine its real milling value.

The quality of the Rosebud Flour was demonstrated at the Didsbury Fair last summer, where bread baked from that flour won 1st prize in open competition with various other flours in 14 entries. It also won 1st prize in pie paste and 2nd in buns.

'Tough' Wheat
May Not Suffer
Through Winter

Thousands of bushels of "homeless" Alberta wheat—homeless because it is grading tough, and there are no immediate drying or handling facilities—may very well come through the winter without particular damage.

Grainmen said today there is no evidence to show that the "tough" wheat will freeze unless the moisture content is unusually high.

"Tough" according to grading standard means the moisture content is from 14.5 to 17 per cent. Over that it goes into the damp category. Just where the "freezing line" in relation to water in the kernel may be is quite indefinite.

In fact farmers are not worrying so much about frost affecting their tough wheat as they are of it heating. In big piles or granaries, if the moisture content is excessive, natural respiration will cause heating just the same as in any large pile of vegetable matter. Once heated it is practically ruined for seed or sale.

Here again, however, the farmer need have no particular worry for tough wheat under ordinary conditions will not heat during winter, though the same may not apply next May or June.

While reports of quite a large number of sprouted and tough samples continue to come from some of the later three-hed districts, germination tests made to date show both wheat and oats to be quite normal with no frost damage.

Officials of the Plant production Service (Dominion Seed Branch) state that very few samples have been tested, but the few have been "quite satisfactory."

Why shiver in the cold? Step into Scott's, buy a Winter Outfit and keep warm from top to toe.

A Million New Income Tax Payers

Due to the heavy burden imposed by the war, income taxes have been increased in many instances by as much as three or four times. Taxes are being paid now by over one million people who had never paid a direct tax to the Federal Treasury before.

Red Cross News

Cost of equipping Canada's first overseas military hospital, erected by the Canadian Red Cross, amounted to $64,110, and included everything from modern sterilizing equipment to chairs, tables and dishes. When turned over to the military authorities, the hospital was complete in every detail and ready for the Army Medical Corps to go into action.

For six months, Canada's first overseas forces have been receiving comforts from the Canadian Red Cross, ranging from smokes, to eate as well as the hundreds of thousands of pairs of socks, distributed to the troops at home and abroad. Each week 50,000 cigarettes, 200 pounds of tobacco and 1,200 cakes of maple sugar are shipped to Britain.

Defenders of Britain in the ranks of British, Canadian and French soldiers, sailors and airmen have had comforts and warmth brought to them through the efforts of Canadian women. Since the outbreak of war, 624,741 pairs of socks, 19,700 pairs of seaboot stockings, 120,675 scarves and more than 17,000 pairs of gloves and mitts have been shipped overseas in addition to the quantities supplied to men training in Canada.

Preparedness, based on Red Cross experience of other wars, and the expectations of British military authorities prevented a serious crisis during the Dunkirk evacuation and provided materials for emergencies during the blitzkrieg of Britain. Typical of articles shipped to Britain by the Canadian Red Cross, and ready for use, were 4,289,389 dressings, 111,658 abdominal binders, 130,059 hospital bed gowns and comparative quantities of sheets, pillow-cases, rolled bandages, bed pads and 80 other articles.

Twenty carloads of Canadian evaporated or canned apples have been shipped overseas by the Canadian Red Cross for the use of soldiers and British refugees.

THIS TALE OF LOST PEN IS HARD TO BEAT

This is the tale of the travelling fountain pen.

Ira Stuart, Edmonton, lost a black fountain pen in a downtown street early in the summer of 1939. It had his name on it but he failed to find any trace of it.

This spring however, James Wallace, his brother-in-law who is with the 61st Battery, R.C.E., was walking across the parade grounds at Aldershot, and there lying at his feet was the pen with Mr. Stuart's name on it. He wrote the owner of the discovery and when, due to illness, Mr. Wallace returned to Edmonton this summer he brought the pen back with him.

Some soldier must have found the pen and taken it overseas with him, only to lose it over there.

Hidden Messages From Prisoners

Curious messages are reported getting by the German censorship, coming from prisoners of war in German camps. One message received by a father in Chelsea, England, hangs its entire significance on the classic phrase, "Tell it to the marines!" Meaning all hokey or something to that effect. The message said:

"We get the best food I've ever eaten. The campguards are all extremely decent and intelligent. Tell all my friends how well I am being treated. Tell my pals in the army and the navy. Above all tell it to the marines."

Another message is allegedly from an Ontario prisoner of war to his Ottawa relatives, and his reference to "Pinecrest" would naturally not attract censor's notice, but Pinecrest is a cemetery near Ottawa. The wording of the letter was: "I must say that these Germans are not what we have been led to believe they are. There is just one thing I desire above everything else—Oh, for a nice soft bed in Pinecrest."

Didsbury Headquarters for Rosebud Health Unit

Didsbury has been chosen the headquarters of the Rosebud Health District and offices are being established at the Heibert residence in the north part of town.

Dr. J. C. McPherson, who has been appointed medical officer of the district, is now here and is organizing the work which will get under way immediately.

A Summary of the Organization of The District Health Unit

The Organization

A group of Municipalities, both rural and urban, organized to carry out the practice of preventive medicine.

The service proposed to give Rural Alberta a full-time preventive health service similar to that enjoyed by the cities of Edmonton and Calgary.

The Staff

- (1) District Health Officer—a medical doctor with special post-graduate training in Public Health.
- (2) Nurse—a graduate registered nurse with special post-graduate training in Public Health.
- (3) Sanitary Inspector—a qualified Sanitary Inspector (Royal Sanitary Institute Certificate.)
- (4) Secretary-Technician—an individual with some training in Laboratory technique and stenographic experience.

Administration

The Unit shall be administered by a Local Board composed of one representative from each municipality contributing to the scheme.

Duties of the Staff

The District Health Officer shall be the executive officer of the Board and shall have charge of the direction of the work of the district. His duties shall be:

- (1) Health Education, especially in the matter of disease prevention and life extension work.

- (2) Epidemiology—he shall have charge and control of all outbreaks of communicable diseases.

- (3) He shall promote and carry out immunization work against Smallpox, Diphtheria, Typhoid Fever and Scarlet Fever.

- (4) Pre-Natal Clinics—Pre-natal clinics shall be held at various points in the district. Here the women of the district are instructed in the hygiene of pregnancy.

- (5) Child Welfare Clinics—These clinics will be held at various points throughout the Unit. The Medical Officer will be available for consultation concerning general infant hygiene.

- (6) School Hygiene—Each school child in the municipalities contributing will have a periodic complete physical examination.

- (7) Life Extension—The Health Officer will be available for consultation concerning the diseases of middle life and old age.

- (8) Meet Municipal Councils—The Medical Officer will meet municipal councils when occasion requires, in order that the health problems of the municipality may be discussed.

The Nurse

In general the nurse's duties correspond closely to those of the doctor. She assists him in health education work, lectures, demonstrations, mothers' conferences, pre-natal work, child welfare work, and health examinations.

She is especially responsible for the "follow-up" work of the Unit, home visiting, et cetera. In addition she will supervise the organization of Home Nursing Classes and Junior Health Leagues.

The Sanitary Inspector Duties

- (1) The supervision of Quarantine, Isolation and Disinfection.
- (2) The inspection of villages, hotels, restaurants, slaughter houses, dairies, tourist camps and nuisances.

- (3) Advises those entitled to the service regarding installation of water supply and sewage disposal systems.

- (4) Inspects water and milk supplies and in general has charge of the sanitation of the district served.

The Secretary-Technician Duties

Stenographic and office work—compilation of statistics and charge of records.

Distributes vaccines, sera, et cetera, and does routine Laboratory examinations—Blood Sputum, Swabs, et cetera.

The attention of those interested is directed to the fact that while the scheme outlined above provides a complete preventive health service, it does not include the treatment of indigent sick.

Dr. McPherson wishes it to be understood that the services of the members of the staff are available to all active organizations for the purposes of giving talks and demonstrations on health services. He hopes that Women's Institutes and kindred organizations in the district will take advantage of this service.

NEW USES OF WHEAT SCIENCE AT WORK

Can Wheat Surplus Be Disposed of by Chemical Developments, Such As Have Worked for Corn and Beans?

In view of the surplus of wheat which is creating a difficult position for farmers, and does not promise to improve, research agencies are trying to discover commercially, valuable uses for wheat. Cecil Lamont, director of Public Relations for N. W. Line Elevators Association, gave an address recently on the industrial utilization of farm products.

He referred to recent study which he had made of the research laboratories of the U. S. government, and the work of Chemurgic conferences in Canada and the United States. Industrial concerns in the United States have spent millions annually on this type of research. Recently one company put on the market a new type of silk stocking made from coal, air and water, wearing much longer than ordinary silk.

Figures given at the Chicago Conference in March of this year showed that industry spends 2% of the gross income annually on research while only one-seventh of one per cent. of the farm income is spent in finding new uses for farm products. And this includes all U. S. government and university research.

The Chicago meeting showed that thousands of new uses had been found for soya beans, milk, corn, coal, wood. But surprising little has been done to seek new industrial uses for wheat.

Dominion Experimental farms and provincial colleges have done experimental work in the growing of corn and soya beans in Canada, and acreage in both lines has increased amongst farmers. But insofar as Western Canada is concerned, production has been for feed, rather than industrial uses.

Wheat

The chief component part of wheat being starch, the greatest industrial possibility is in the field of motor fuel. At present 2.57 gallons of power alcohol can be taken from a bushel of wheat. With wheat at 75 cents a bushel, the cost of a gallon of power alcohol is 19 cents. Consumer marketing costs would have to be added. In Kansas a plant is extracting this alcohol from farm products at 16 cents a bushel on 70-cent corn.

Fifty countries are using power alcohol extracted from farm products and coal. An ordinary car motor can be driven with a 15% mixture of power alcohol with ordinary gas. A chemist in Czecho-Slovakia has an engine operating on powdered grain.

If known supplies of oil become exhausted, as is predicted, in from 15 to 50 years, the world will have to turn to new fields for motor fuel purposes.

The Ford research is at work learning if wheat proteins, like soya beans, can be made into wool products, and if this can be done it would be adaptable for upholstery and velours.

Additional Crops

Mr. Lamont said he had been on the lookout for other farm crops for Canada that might bring in cash income. A fine grade of oil is produced from sunflower seeds, replacing cottonseed and olive oil. Russia and Argentina are increasing sunflower growth. Canada imports yearly $17,000,000 of oils, such as might be extracted from sunflower seeds. Canada might get $10 an acre from such a crop.

The Canadian government has spent millions to meet the wheat situation. It is with this in mind that the line elevator companies have urged the government to establish a western division of the National Research Council. Here in the west our future is definitely linked with wheat. There is no other cash crop to which large areas can turn for successful production.

If research can find uses for as much wheat as has been found for corn and beans, a great step will have been taken in dealing with the surplus.

Women's Missionary Society is planning a concert to be held in the Knox Church, Thursday, November 28th. Keep this date in mind.

The World of Wheat

By H. G. L. STRANGE
Director, "The Crop Testing Plan."

A series of momentous discoveries have recently been made in Great Britain, and because of it all an action has just been taken by the British government which may in time save Canada's and the World's surplus wheat problem.

The discoveries are that the now famous vitamin B-1, sometimes known as thiamin or aneurin, controls to a great extent the health, the energy and the well-being of people; then, that this vitamin can be produced artificially at low cost; and more important still, that it can easily be added to wheat flour, and so making bread almost a complete food in itself.

The British government will require by law that all flour manufactured after the spring of 1941 shall contain the necessary amount of vitamin B-1.

It is expected that this "fortifying" of flour will eventually spread to all wheat using countries and that it will result in an additional consumption of this more nutritious and even more palatable bread.

I have calculated that if every person in the world now using bread made from wheat would consume as little as one extra slice a day, then the entire World wheat surplus would quickly disappear and wheat acreage would have to be increased.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Australia recently sold 100,000 tons wheat to Greece -- Broomhall estimates European 1940 wheat production, including area ceded to Russia, to be 1,400 million, a reduction of 16 per cent. from last year -- All 1940 Swedish grain crops below 1939 totals, wheat down 47 per cent. -- Portugal made purchase of 280,000 bushels Canadian wheat a few days ago.

Following factors have tended to lower price: Larger acreage expected to be seeded in Danubian coun-

By Dr. K. W. Neatby
Director, Agricultural Department
North-West Line Elevators Association

The discoloration on the germ end of wheat grains, commonly called "black point" or "black tip," is unusually common in this year's crop. The term "kernel smudge" has been adopted by plant pathologists for this disease to avoid confusion with a less conspicuous and less common disease which they call black point. Kernel smudge is a fungous disease, and may be caused by at least two different fungi. One of them (Helminthosporium sativum) is a dangerous parasite, being a very common cause of seedling blight and root-rot of wheat. Incidentally, it is capable of attacking roots, leaves and grains of barley.

The fungi which cause kernel smudge are probably present in all wheat fields in western Canada, and the air contains an abundance of spores, especially in late summer and in the fall. Outbreaks of the disease such as that which occurred this year must, therefore, be due largely to favourable weather conditions. It appears that the new rust resistant varieties are more susceptible than were the old standard varieties such as Marquis.

There is, at present, no way of controlling or preventing kernel smudge. Diseased seed may produce a crop free from kernel smudge, and the crop produced from disease-free seed may contain many discoloured kernels. Since, however, one of the fungi involved may cause seedling blight, if "smudged" grain is used for seed it should be treated with an organic mercury dust.

Dr. F. J. Greaney, Associate Plant Pathologist at the Dominion Rust Research Laboratory, has consented to prepare a more complete discussion of this problem for publication in the next issue of the now well known, semi-annual "Seedtime and Harvest."

tries -- Spain and the United Kingdom -- China's 1940 wheat crop is reported to be 5 per cent. above last year -- American domestic sales drop sharply due to national election -- Argentine wheat prospects continue excellent.

No Need for Alarm

Many business people, it seems, are still alarmed because of a belief some hold that prairie farmers will be unable to sell sufficient of their crops this year to receive even a reasonable amount of money before the winter sets in.

The facts are that farmers have already delivered to elevators from August 1st to October 19th, 190 million bushels of wheat, and that 85 million of this was delivered during the 30 days from September 19th to October 19th. Should these deliveries continue, therefore, at this same rate then farmers would have delivered and sold by December 1st, to country elevators, around 300 million bushels.

Some authorities confidentially believe that farmers will at least have delivered to country elevators by December 1st an average of 10 bushels to the acre. This would come to approximately 280 million bushels, which should bring to farmers the total sum of $140,000,000 cash by December 1st. As will be seen from the attached table, this is more money than our farmers of the West, as a group, have received for wheat by December 1st in any year in the past five years, with the single exception of last year.

This large sum of $140,000,000 for wheat alone, without counting the cash for coarse grains, livestock and livestock products, hay and other incidental products, should in itself warrant a fair amount of credit. But it is to be remembered that even after this is all sold the farmers will still have almost 200 million bushels more wheat in hand to be delivered and sold for cash to elevators between December 1st and August 1st next. All in all, then, it would appear that the Prairie farmers' credit should be as good now as it has been for many past years, and better than it has been for several years.

Bicyclists Are Warned to Observe Traffic Rules

"Let's ride. But let's ride safely," was the advice given to young bicyclists by Calgary Chief of Police David Ritchie. Cycling, he said, was great fun for young people and a very healthy exercise, but could be dangerous if traffic rules were not obeyed.

"Cyclists," he stated, "are subject to the same traffic laws as motorists." Here are a few simple rules Chief Ritchie issued which apply equally well to the town of Olds:

1. Keep to the extreme right of the road.
2. Observe all stop signs and give proper hand signals.
3. Keep both hands on the handlebars except when making signals.
4. Ride in a straight line. Do not wobble, and do not weave in and out of traffic.
5. Do not ride more than two abreast. On narrow streets ride in single file.
6. Do not hang on to street cars or other vehicles.
7. Do not carry a passenger on the handlebars of your bicycle.
8. Avoid busy streets whenever possible.
9. A light must be carried on the front of your bicycle and a red disc attached to the rear mudguard. An electric torch carried in the hand does not comply with the law. White tail patches on the rear mudguard are a good protection at night, and may soon be compulsory.

STUNNING FALL DRAPERIES YOU CAN MAKE YOURSELF

Follow Professional Pointers

Handsome draperies and clever, too! With this novel arrangement of valance and cascade you can give a distinguished double-window effect to apair of ordinary windows.

The making is simple. You needn't line these draperies, though for a rich appearance it's best to choose one of the heavier fabrics.

Beautiful and inexpensive are gold rayon damask, apricot sateen and for either you could use a brown fringe trimming.

As for the valances and cascades, you turn them out in a jiffy. For each set, cut a rectangular strip of fabric into two triangles as the diagram shows.

Use one triangle for a valance, sewing fringe to the two shorter sides and tacking long edge to valance board. The other triangle is a cascade and you hem the shorter sides, sew fringe to the longest. Then pleat the cascade, baste, press, add tassel and tack to valance board.

So side draperies will trail gracefully, allow a few extra inches at the bottoms. For rich folds, make pinch pleats. Easy with directions!

Our 32-page booklet gives diagrams and directions for making draperies and glass curtains of all types. Tells how to estimate material, cut, sew, finish and hang. Shows making of smart valances, swags, corners, trimmings.

PRINCESS SLIP WITH PANTIES

By Anne Adams

It's fun to have luxurious underthings—especially when they cost just the making. This Anne Adams "undies" set, Pattern 4586, is wonderfully simple to make with the Sewing Instructor's aid, yet it fits the size thirty-four-to-fifty figure with smooth perfection. The slip is in the princess style every dress-maker appreciates for its quick-to-stitch seams and easy fitting. Notice how the built-up straps are cut in one piece with the side panels. The neckline is in curved V-shape, front and back, and the hemline may be prettily scalloped or straight with a matching edge to the neat panties. Both garments may be lace-trimmed for daintiness.

Pattern 4586 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36, slip and panties, takes 3½ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly Size, Name, Address and Style Number and send orders to the Anne Adams Pattern Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave., E., Winnipeg.

Between The Censor And Visits From Jerry, There Is Trouble Enough

Please, Mr. Censor, now that bombs have fallen in so many parts of London can we mention that the building of the New Statesman and Nation is no longer in occupation? It is not destroyed, you know, but the police and firemen and the broken glass and crater co-operate to forbid its use, and we would like to explain this to readers and contributors. Yes, we rescued the Encyclopaedia Britannica and Dictionary of Slang and the office mascot and we have a delightful excuse for not replying to a lot of tiresome letters. . . . Can't we mention this? Not at present? You are consulting the Air Ministry and will let me know? The Daily Herald also suffers from broken windows and the Evening Standard's caught it hot? Thank you.

Thursday morning, going to press and still no permission and no word to these anxious souls who brood over our physical and spiritual welfare. No sooner had we gone to press than the dailies got their permission, blast them (no, this is no longer an appropriate phrase), and this week we, too, are allowed to refer to our change of address. — London New Statesman.

"We must cut down everything by at least one-third," said a lecturer on economy recently. At the conclusion of his remarks the audience gave two hearty cheers.

The Correct Procedure

Proper Use Of The Flag Is Very Important

At such a time, when the national flag is being used much more than in normal days, questions concerning regulations as to its use come up much more frequently. Naturally, it is the spirit of loyalty that prompts the display of the flag that is the important thing, but it is also very important that its use should be dignified by an observance of the correct procedure. The following concise instructions as to how to use the flag have been published by the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire, and will be of interest to citizens in general.

1. The Union Jack is the official flag of Canada, and should be the one flown in Canada.

2. The Red and Blue Ensigns, with the Coat-of-Arms of Canada in the fly, are intended for use afloat and on official buildings outside of Canada. They are not correctly used on buildings in Canada.

3. The flag should not be hoisted before sunrise, nor allowed to remain up after sunset.

4. In hoisting the flag the broad white stripe in the cross of St. Andrew should be above the red stripe of St. Patrick on the side of the flag next the mast head; if reversed, it is an indication of distress.

5. The flag should always be carried upright and not allowed to touch the ground.

6. When placed at half-mast the flag should first be raised to the mast head and then lowered.

7. When used for indoor decoration the flag should never be below a person sitting.

8. It should never be used as a cover for table, box or desk, except at a military religious ceremony, and nothing should be placed upon it, except the Bible.

In regard to the National Anthem ("God Save the King"), a final clause is added: "Whenever the National Anthem is played or sung, all persons within hearing should stand at attention, men with heads uncovered."

1941 Census

Most Detailed Census Ever To Be Taken In Canada

There will be nothing approximate about the 1941 Canadian census which starts next June 2.

A. J. Pelletier, chief of the census board, Dominion bureau of statistics, described it as "the most detailed census ever to be taken in Canada."

Some 16,000 enumerators, with the aid of 18,000 maps, outlining the various districts to which they are assigned, will conduct it. These men will work on a "commission basis," receiving so much per person, house and so on.

IT COULD HAVE BEEN AVOIDED

In many railway crossing accidents it is never learned what impelled the driver of a car to make that fatal dash in front of a speeding locomotive. Sometimes it is thought that he just tried to "beat the gun." Sometimes inattention is responsible, or the brief stop to look and listen that might have saved a life or lives. The impending accident pictured above in these series of warning illustrations, is an actual one, however, and the cause was clear. Two young people were sighted by the horrified engineer, obviously interested only in each other. They must have known the crossing was there, for the car was moving along the road but they failed to look for the train. Rounding a curve, the engine struck the car with emergency brakes set, but demolished the automobile and killed both occupants. If ever a fatal accident could have been avoided with sane practice this one could have been.

If you are suffering with discomfort of a head cold, enjoy the grand relief that comes when you use Vicks Va-tro-nol. 3-purpose Va-tro-nol is so effective because it does three important things—(1) shrinks swollen membranes—(2) soothes irritation—(3) helps flush out the nasal passages, clearing clogging mucus. No wonder Va-tro-nol is America's most widely used nasal medicine! ... And remember, if used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds developing.

HEALTH AND EFFICIENCY

That most of the bread consumed in Canadian cities is capable of considerable improvement in the interests of war-time health and efficiency, is indicated by an article appearing in the current issue of the Canadian Public Health Journal over the signature of E. W. McHenry, Ph. D., of the University of Toronto.

It is, of course, generally known that whole-wheat bread is of greater nutritional value than white bread, but the fact has not made the darker colored loaf popular. Dr. McHenry therefore proposes that the value of white flour be raised by adding wheat germ or yeast of high vitamin content. This can be done without affecting the color of the resultant loaf, he declares.

The special nutritive quality of whole wheat bread lies in the fact that it contains vitamin and mineral contents which, to a very large extent, are removed by modern milling processes. Vitamin B complex, which is absolutely essential to health is reduced to about one third of its original quantity in the course of milling, for instance.

A survey of 100 families of low incomes in Toronto, he says, reveals that even the best fed members fall far below the satisfactory margin in their daily intake of Vitamin B1, a condition which he finds reason to believe is general.

Dr. McHenry repeats that the intake of Vitamin B1 would be increased if people ate whole wheat bread, but since they decline to do so other methods must be found, and experiments have shown that bread containing five per cent. wheat germ has noticeable effect on growth and nutrition.

CHAPTER XXI. Continued

But Harlow had no other objective than the accumulation of money. He had shown a vicarious interest in the public weal when he had presented his model police station to the country; he had certainly subscribed liberally to hospital appeals; but none of these gifts belonged to a system of charity or public spirit. He was a man without social gifts, the joys or sufferings of his fellows struck no sympathetic chord in his nature. If he gave, he gave cold bloodedly, and yet without ostentation.

True, he had offered to build, on the highest point of the Chiltern Hills, an exact replica of the Parthenon as a national war memorial, but the offer had been rejected because of the inaccessibility of the chosen spot. There was a certain freakishness in his projects, and Jim suspected that they were not wholly disinterested. The man baffled him; he could get no thread that would lead him to the soul and the mind behind those cold blue eyes.

For six hours that night he sat by the bedside of the unconscious Foreign Minister. What strange story could he tell? Jim wondered. How came he to be perambulating the streets in the guise of a drunken mountebank, whose wanderings were to end in a vulgar brawl with a policeman and the cheerless lodging of a prison cell? Had he some secret weakness which Harlow had learnt and exploited? Did he live a double life? Jim thought, only to reject the thought. Sir Joseph's life was more or less an open book; his movements for years past could be traced day by day from the information supplied by the diaries of his secretary, from the knowledge of his own colleagues.

While he kept his vigil he made another attempt to decipher the writing on the card, but he got no further. Jim was taking turn and turn about with Inspector Wilton of Every street in watching beside the bedside. The doctor had said that at any moment the Minister might recover consciousness, and though he took the gravest view of the ultimate result of the drugging, his prognosis did not exclude the chance of a complete recovery. It was at a quarter after 3 in the morning that the sick man, who had been tossing from side to side, muttering disjointed words which had no meaning to the listener, turned upon his back and, opening his eyes blinked round the dimly lighted room. Jim, who had been studying the card in the light of a shaded lamp put the pasteboard into his pocket and came to the side of the bed.

Sir Joseph looked at him wonderingly, his wide brows knit in an effort of memory.

"Hullo!" he said faintly. "What happened? ... Did the car smash up?"

"Nothing serious has happened, Sir Joseph," said Jim gently.

Again the wondering eyes wandered around the bare walls of the room, and then they fell upon a temperature chart hanging against the wall.

"This is a hospital, isn't it?"

"A nursing home," said Jim.

There was a long silence before the sick man spoke.

"My head aches infernally. Can you give me a drink, or isn't that allowed?"

Jim poured out a glass of water and, supporting the shoulders of the Minister, put the glass to his lips. He drank the contents greedily and sank back with a sigh upon the pillow.

"I suppose I am a little light-headed, but I could swear that your name was Carlton," he said.

"That is my name, sir," said Jim, and the Minister pondered this for a little time.

"Anything broken?" he asked. "It was the car, I suppose? I told that stupid chauffeur of mine to be careful. The road was like glass."

He moved first one leg and then the other gingerly, and then his arms.

"Nothing is broken at all, Sir Joseph," said Jim. "You have had a little shock."

He had already rung for the doctor, who was sleeping in a room below.

"Shock, eh? ... I don't remember. ... And Harlow?" His eyebrows lowered again. "A decent fellow but rather overdressed. I went to his house to-night, didn't I? ... those Macedonian people? Yes, yes, I remember. How long ago was it?"

Jim would not tell him that the visit to Harlow's had happened days before.

"Yes, yes, I remember now. Where did I go after that? ... to the House, I suppose? My mind is like a whirling ball of wool!"

The doctor came in, a dressing gown over his pajamas, and the Minister's mind was sufficiently clear to guess his profession.

"I'm all in, doctor. What was it, a stroke?"

"No, Sir Joseph," said the doctor. He was feeling his patient's pulse, and seemed satisfied.

"Sir Joseph thinks he might have been in a car collision," suggested Jim, with a significant glance at the doctor.

The man was terribly weak, but the brightness of his intellect was undimmed.

"What is the matter with me?" he asked, irritably, as the medical man put the stethoscope to his heart.

"I'm wondering whether you have ever taken drugs in your life?"

"Drugs!" snorted the old man. "Good God! what a question! I don't even take medicine! When I feel queer I go to my osteopath and he puts me right!"

The doctor grinned, as all properly constituted doctors grin when an osteopath is mentioned, for the medical profession is the most conservative and the most suspicious of any.

cloud. I will give instructions that you are to have carte blanche, and I will support you in any action you may take."

With this confident assurance Jim went on to Scotland Yard to prove the truth of a theory which had slowly evolved in the dark hours of the night—a theory so fantastical that he could hardly bring himself to its serious contemplation.

CHAPTER XXII.

Four hundred and fifteen cablegrams were put on the wire in one morning and they were all framed in identical terms:

"Remit by cable through Lombard Bank Carr Street Branch all profits taken in Rata Transaction 17 to receipt of this instruction. Acknowledge. Rata."

This message was dispatched at 3 o'clock in the morning from the G. P. O.

The Foreign Department manager of the Lombard Bank was an old friend of Mr. Ellenbury, and had done business with him before. Mr. Ellenbury drove to the bank the following afternoon and saw the head of the Foreign Department.

"I am expecting some very extensive cable remittances through the Lombard," he said, "and I shall want cash."

The sour-looking manager looked even more sour.

"Rata's, I suppose? I'm surprised that you are mixed up with these people, Mr. Ellenbury. I don't think you can know what folks are saying in the city. ..."

He was a friend and was frank. Mr. Ellenbury listened meekly.

"One cannot pick and choose," he said. "The war made a great deal of difference to me; I must live."

The war is an unfailing argument to explain changed conditions and can be employed as well to account for adaptable standards of morality. The manager accepted the other's viewpoint with reservations.

"How much has Harlow made out of this swindle," he asked, again exercising the privilege of friendship.

"Some day I will tell you," said the lawyer cryptically. "The point is, I expect very large sums."

"Sterling or what?"

"Any currency that is stable," said Mr. Ellenbury.

That evening came the first advice from Johannesburg. The sum remitted was not colossal, but it was large. New Orleans arrived in the night and was delivered to Mr. Ellenbury with Chicago, New York, Toronto and Sydney. The cable advices accumulated; Mr. Ellenbury took no steps to draw the money that was piling up at the Lombard Bank until the second day.

Panama Canal Defence

U.S. Would Modernize Railway Line Across Isthmus

Ten million dollars may be sought in the United States to rehabilitate a railway line across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, the narrow neck of southern Mexico between the gulf and the Pacific ocean, to make it an auxiliary Panama canal defence, it was reported.

The United States and Mexican government were reported to be actively, though still secretly, interested in the project to modernize the 186-mile railroad between the Pacific port of Salina Cruz and Puerto Mexico on the Gulf of Mexico.

American military and naval experts have emphasized that any such route, subsidiary to the canal, would be of value in war time.

It is the same region Japanese interests have surveyed for the possibilities of a pipe line across the isthmus for fuel oil.
